It connects the Atlantic to the Mediterranean over 750 km from Royan to Sète, via Bordeaux, the Canal de Garonne, Toulouse and the Canal du Midi. In Entre-deux-Mers, this route follows:

⊗ The Roger Lapébie track: green track built on an old railway, the cycle path about 60 km long allows to connect Bordeaux to Sauveterre-de-Guyenne. It offers a hilly route, a tunnel, and a wide variety of landscapes

⊗ The road bike Sauveterre - La Réole, is marked out and allows you to connect the canal's green road by taking small quiet roads.

⊗ The canal greenway: it was built on the towpath of the Garonne canal. The course, partly shaded under large plane trees, is pleasant and close to the Garonne river.

A VELO

Stays without a car in the heart of the vineyard !

Escapade by E-bike from Bordeaux

The Entre-deux-Mers: the vineyard at your fingertips!

From the quays of Bordeaux, take the cycle path to a small road winding along the Garonne. This will take you to Latresne and the junction with the Roger Lapébie greenway. You have arrived in the heart of the Entre-deux-Mers!

Cycle along the greenway built on an old railway line, it offers refreshing stops in the restored old stations (bars, second-hand shops, tourist stops...) crosses varied landscapes (vines, woods...) and the pretty bastide of Créon.

To eat, there's nothing like a good country picnic in the heart of the vineyards. Comfortably seated, enjoy a tasting basket of local products in the park of the Château le Grand Verdus estate.

On the way back, you will come across the Abbey of La Sauve Majeure: a masterpiece of 12th century Romanesque art, this historical monument bears witness to religious architecture that has spanned the centuries. Welcome to this enchanting site, out of time!

You will then head towards the Garonne by taking country roads suitable for cycle touring and leading to beautiful wine-growing landscapes: small hillsides on one side and rows of vines plunging down to the Garonne on the other. At the bend in the road, the majestic medieval castle of Langoiran dominates the Garonne valley.

Between Langoiran, on the banks of the Garonne, and Créon, take a majestic avenue to arrive at the Château Lamothe de Haux. This residence with its typical regional architecture, whose foundations date back to the 16th century, has a very singular particularity: cellars built in impressive galleries dug in the 17th and 18th centuries. Fossils of sea urchins and oysters bear witness to the presence of the sea on this limestone plateau long ago. You can also observe mammoth bones and traces of troglodyte habitation. A real journey through time!

It's time to announce our last stop. Located on the heights of the Garonne, the Cabane dans les vignes is the ideal spot to end this beautiful escapade. On the menu, tapas made with local products and a breathtaking sunset!

Farmers, artisans, and family businesses invite you to discover the soul of the region through them. Zoom in on a few of the protagonists who make the Bordeaux hinterland a place where it is good to exchange, meet and taste!

LOUGAPA NOBILIS

In September 2023, Gaëtan Cossoul Le Bellis and Pascal Di Martino opened a new kind of establishment in La Réole. The venue is at once a gourmet store for artisanal pastries, a tea room with brunch, a lounge terrace, and guest rooms with a gym and spa. It is a whole universe centered on culinary quality and good living, thanks to Gaëtan (master artisan baker, pastry chef, chocolatier, and tourier) and Pascal (artisan baker-pastry chef) who have been partners for twenty years. Culinary workshops, chef demonstrations, and various events are also regularly scheduled.

MOULINAT FARM

During your guided tour, the Fazembat family will invite you to discover the stone tobacco drying barn, the only one built in this way in France. They will explain the production of foie gras preserves, which you can watch from behind the laboratory windows. After a tasting, fill your basket with the products made and sold on site: foie gras with figs, confits, pâtés, and ready-made meals. There is also a magnificent reception room (tobacco drying barn) on site.

Please note: the Ferme du Moulinat organizes events every year: in June, the Festigrillades, a festive and friendly weekend with concerts, a gastronomic and artisanal market, and farm meals. THE GUYENNE BREWERY-DISTILLERY

Sure, here is the translation of the French text you provided:

Complementary and passionate, Arnaud, François and Hugo came together around shared passions: spirits, good products and respect for the environment. From discussions in the basketball locker room to the whiskies tasted and blended in Arnaud's garage, to the beers brewed by François as an amateur, their story is written between three friends united by a passion for entrepreneurship and respect for know-how. The Brasserie-Distillerie Guyenne has set up shop in an old wine cellar in the heart of the Entre-deux-Mers and offers spirits: gins, rums, whiskies, vodka as well as the Pastis de Guyenne and a few references of beer complete the collection.

Farmers and a territory committed to ecological transition!

AGRIÉNERGIE OR HOW TO TRANSFORM OUR WASTE INTO ENERGY.

The Auros Methanization Plant is open for visits.

The company Agriénergie, which consists of a collective of nine farmers, aims to diversify their activities by treating livestock effluents to address the challenges of energy transition. This methanization unit currently produces green gas based on livestock effluents, energy crops, as well as waste from fruits and vegetables, and grape marc from a local supermarket and cooperative.

This local project has brought together public and private stakeholders around the founding farmers. Methanization not only helps to sustain the economic model of a farm, but also contributes positively to the local area through its environmental and economic benefits.

During the visit, there will be explanations and demonstrations organized into three parts: Welcome and presentation of the team and the working unit, a guided tour to explain the theoretical functioning of the company, and a site visit to observe the process of agricultural effluents being transformed into gas.

The wandering Heritage Trails ...

The patina of centuries

The Entre-deux-Mers has managed to preserve the memory of stones. Its monuments tell a story embellished by the centuries. This prestigious past is reflected in the imposing architecture of the ducal castle overlooking the ramparts of Cadillac, the neoclassical nobility of the Benedictine priory of La Réole, or the charming medieval city of Rions. It is discovered, miraculously preserved, in the mosaics of a Gallo-Roman villa near Loupiac or on the sculpted capitals of the Abbey of La Sauve-Majeure. If there is a living heritage, it is certainly that of the bastides. Walking through them is to admire the genius of the builders of the medieval age who invented a new city within their walls in the West.

Explore the Bordeaux hinterland and discover its prestigious past.

THE MUST-SEES

ABBAYE DE LA SAUVE

World Heritage Site UNESCO

Founded in 1079, this masterpiece of Romanesque art is listed by UNESCO as a World Heritage Site under the title of the routes of Santiago de Compostela. The majestic ensemble that remains today offers a timeless landscape, in an open-air site, with exceptional sculptures and vestiges in a haven of tranquility, a magnificent testimony of religious architecture at the heart of the Entre-deux-Mers.

MEDIEVAL VILLAGES

La Réole, city of Art and History

The thousand-year-old city of Entre-deux-Mers offers a very rich monumental ensemble, from the Middle Ages to the 19th century, highlighted by the Garonne River. It was around the Benedictine abbey that the city was built, which took the name of Régula, La Réole today, where the monks of the priory followed the rule of Saint Benedict.

Let yourself be guided in the city of Richard the Lionheart. The narrow streets lined with half-timbered houses will lead you to the oldest town hall in France. You will then discover the church of Saint-Pierre, the Benedictine abbey and the elegant arabesques of the listed wrought ironwork (18th century).

Castelmoron d'Albret

Built on a limestone rock overlooking the Ségur valley, Castelmoron d'Albret is the smallest commune in France. As you stroll through its steep streets lined with old houses, its walls and the mill gate will imbue you with its history.

THE BASTIDES

Remnants of medieval life, these fortified villages are characterised by their construction around an arcaded square. The bastides of the Entre-deux-Mers region were all founded in the 13th and 14th centuries, and are well worth a visit, as each has its own special character: the bastide of Créon with its magnificent arcaded square, the bastide of Monségur: the only bastide on a hilltop in the Gironde, overlooking the Dropt. Then there's Sauveterre-de-Guyenne with its four walled gates, Blasimon with its Benedictine abbey, and finally the bastide town of Cadillac, surrounded by its walls and bordered by the Château.

CADILLAC CASTLE

Overlooking the Garonne River and the bastide town of Cadillac, the château is a typical example of a 17th-century stately home, and has preserved its original decor (monumental fireplaces, tapestries, painted ceilings). In the 19th century, the residence was converted into a women's prison.

The old town, with its rich and well-preserved heritage, is firmly committed to a contemporary dynamic and to adapting to environmental challenges.

Notre Dame de Bonnenouvelle and the Blasimon menhir.

In the heart of the Entre-deux-Mers region, the rolling valleys take you on a journey through time. Here, the chapel of Bonne Nouvelle tells of a time when magic and diverse beliefs rubbed shoulders with the first Christian sites. A miraculous ferruginous fountain existed nearby. People came from far and wide because it cured all illnesses! These sites have been occupied by man since prehistoric times: the Cluzet cave, used from the Neolithic period until the Middle Ages. The Forêt cave, the dolmen or covered walkway, the menhirs at Bois du Luc or Vallée de Sainte-Catherine and the Bonne Nouvelle menhir. This menhir, in the immediate vicinity of the Chapelle de Bonne-Nouvelle, is a vestige of a megalithic alignment reported in 1886 by Léo Drouyn. It is now only 1.45 m high, whereas it was once 2.50 m high and 1 m wide.

The Commanderie of Pondaurat

What an adorable little village this is! Bathed by the Bassanne river, the hamlet has been welcoming pilgrims on their way to Santiago de Compostela for centuries. The Antonines settled here to found a hospitable commandery, which went through a number of vicissitudes. Nevertheless, it was the source of major economic development from the 13th century onwards. Evidence of this can be seen in the mills and the "pont-digue" bridge that gives the town its name.

Constructed of pretty golden stone, this medieval "golden bridge" delights with its warm colours. Formerly fortified, the commandery now shelters passing pilgrims, as it did in the past. The picturesque setting is bathed in beautiful light at the end of the day, revealing itself in all its glory.

The Château de Benauges

Château de Benauges is one of the largest medieval fortresses in the department. Situated on the highest point of the Entre-deux-Mers region of Bordeaux, it was the seat of a powerful seigneurie from the end of the 11th century. It was besieged by the King of England in 1253 and then rebuilt by the Grailly family, who also built the neighbouring bastide town of Cadillac. In 1453, it witnessed one of the last battles of the Hundred Years' War during a new siege, this time led by Charles VII, King of France. Benauges passed into the hands of the Duc d'Épernon, who relegated it to the background when he built the imposing ducal palace of Cadillac in the early 17th century. Today, the towering silhouette of the romantic ruins of Benauges stands out against the rolling landscape of the Entre-deux-Mers region. Privately owned, the château is open to group visits by prior arrangement.

Turnkey days and breaks... Meeting new people, sharing experiences with friends, family or as a couple.

From tending the vines to vinification, ageing and discovering the principles of wine tasting, wine will hold almost no secrets for you! Our winegrowers invite you to take part in the discovery of wine and to experience the life of a winegrower through the seasons. Come behind the scenes with us and discover the secrets and magic of wine-making under the guidance of passionate wine-makers: grape-picking or blending workshops, oenological lunches or dinners accompanied by our wine-makers, wine-tasting in the dark or a relaxing wine-tasting workshop... There's a whole programme on offer!

If you're a cycling enthusiast, we've put together some great programmes for you along our cycle paths or on our small, cycling-friendly roads.

Picnic baskets, luggage transfers, energetic breakfasts, table d'hôte dinners and food and wine pairings with a winegrower who will join you to liven up your meal - our partners will be pulling out all the stops to make your stay a success!
